Communities of Action provide opportunities for connection, idea sharing and professional development

Communities of Action (CoA) are central to the Digital Health Canada mission to support members in their professional development by providing opportunities for connection and idea-sharing. Volunteering with a CoA Working Group is an excellent way to grow your network, improve your resume, and learn something new. Topics covered by CoA Working Groups include:

Digital Opportunities in Mental Healthcare: Patient Access in Mental Health

This new CoA Working Group is putting together a jurisdictional scan of current work around digital tools related to mental health within Canada.

Jurisdictional EMR Governance

This CoA Working Group is composed of Digital Health Canada Atlantic Chapter members and is preparing a white paper outlining recommendations for jurisdictional Electronic Medical Records (EMR) governance.

Patients in Tech

This CoA Working Group is gathering content that will highlight the relationship between the principles and benefits of patients as partners and the product discovery, design, and strategy approaches of leading digital health solutions.

Virtual Care Innovation in Canada

This CoA Working Group will share lessons learned from their review of virtual care success stories from across the country.

Home and Community Care

This group is undertaking an analysis of current state of technology-enabled solutions and identification of converging digital technologies, starting with high level and environmental jurisdictional scans of home and community care practices, integration, and structure.

Start your own Community of Action!

Bring your ideas to life in a CoA Working Group

Are you a Digital Health Canada Member with a digital health-related topic you would like to explore? Take the first step toward turning your research idea into a published paper by asking Digital Health Canada to help you form your own Community of Action Working Group. Digital Health Canada offers guidance and support as you progress from idea to plan, and from plan to final publication.
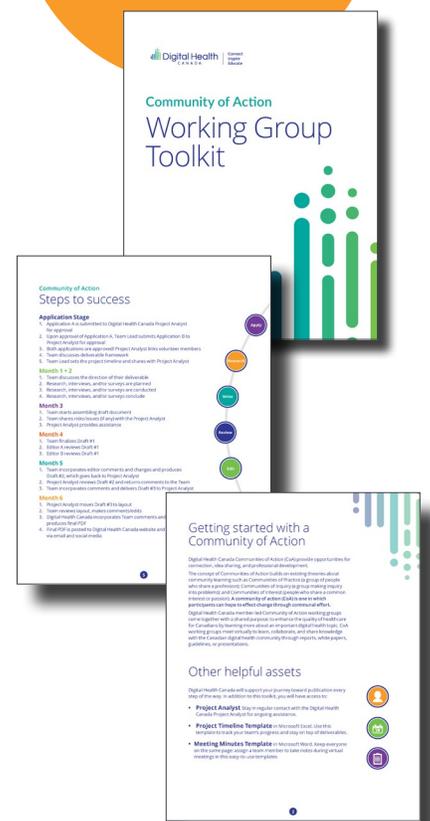

Connect with other Digital Health Canada Members

Start your own CoA or volunteer with an existing CoA Working Group and find opportunities to work virtually with Digital Health Canada Members from across Canada. Connect and learn while you and your team contribute to the pool of Canadian digital health knowledge (and you add a polished publication to your list of accomplishments).

Digital Health Canada provides assistance from beginning to end, and equips you with the essential resources you need to make sure you and your team stay on track to success.
